Asylum in Hungary

You are now in Hungary (Magyarország). The official language is Hungarian (magyar). Hungary is a Member State of the European Union (EU) and is in Central-Eastern Europe.

- Capital, international airport
- Community shelter
- Refugee centre
- Immigration jail
- Asylum detention facility

The authority in charge of asylum is the Office for Immigration and Nationality, OIN, or simply Immigration Office (Bevándorlási és Állampolgársági Hivatal, BÁH), which is part of the Ministry of the Interior.

1. The rights of an asylum seeker

As an asylum seeker, you have the right:

- to use your mother tongue or another language that you speak well. You have the right to an interpreter. If you don't understand the interpreter well, tell it to the officer and remember that you have a right to ask for another one.
- to request an interpreter and an asylum officer of the same sex as you (man or woman).
- to receive a written copy in Hungarian of all decisions taken during your asylum procedure.
- to be informed about the content of the decision(s) in your mother tongue or another language that you understand well (with the help of an interpreter).
- to receive free legal assistance from a lawyer and/or from a non-governmental organisation.
- to contact the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in Budapest (see contact information at the end of the brochure).
- to receive a humanitarian residence permit. to receive a small monthly “pocket money” when your asylum application gets to the detailed procedure, but only if you are not detained in an immigration jail and you are not staying in a private apartment. The allowance shall be paid by the fifth day of the month and if you miss this day, you can only get the pocket money later if you were in the hospital on the day of the payment.
- to be given basic medical care and emergency medical assistance. Doctors visit the refugee camps and detention centres a few times a week. You are only entitled to emergency dental care. It is only an emergency if without immediate medical treatment, your life would be in danger or there would be serious or irreversible harm to your health.
- to work, once your case is referred to the detailed procedure, but only if you are staying in the refugee camp and only within the camp itself. Contact the camp administration for more information. If the asylum procedure takes longer than 9 months, you have the right to work outside the camp. For this, first you have to obtain a valid work permit (munkavállalási engedély). Contact a social worker of the Immigration Office or the Menedék Association for help (their contact information is at the end of the leaflet).
- to attend school if you or your children are under 16 years of age. If they have been present in the country for less than a year, they can attend school if you request it.

Make sure that you and the interpreter understand each other without difficulty. Interpreters must behave in a neutral way. They do not have the right to ask you their own questions during the interviews and they must not try to convince you to withdraw your asylum application or to change your story. If you have communication difficulties with the interpreter or you think that the interpreter is not neutral, tell these problems immediately to the officer and/or your lawyer and ask for another interpreter.

2. The asylum procedure

? How do I ask for asylum?

You should submit the asylum application as soon as possible, either by contacting the Immigration Office or the Police (Rendőrség) if you are in jail, at the border or at the airport. If you arrived in Hungary with false documents, you should immediately say this, and if possible show your real documents; otherwise this can cause problems later in your asylum procedure. There are no formal requirements, you can ask for asylum in writing or orally and in any language.

If you are afraid that the officer will not understand your asylum application, clearly say the word “MENEKÜLT” (refugee) or “MENEDÉK” (asylum) in Hungarian and also submit a written application in your language in two copies. Please do not forget to sign the written application!

? How is the application processed?

The asylum procedure in Hungary has two phases. First there is an admissibility procedure. If the Immigration Office decides that your application can be accepted, then the next phase is the detailed procedure.

A. THE “ADMISSIBILITY PROCEDURE” (előzetes vizsgálati eljárás)

You will have an interview with an asylum officer and an interpreter, usually within a few days after your arrival. You will be asked questions regarding your personal data, how you came to Hungary and about the reasons why you are asking for protection. Don't forget to mention if you have family members living elsewhere in Europe, your health problems and whether you experienced serious problems in another European country on your way to Hungary.

The authorities will first examine whether you came across a country where the “Dublin regulation” is used (see the list of Dublin countries in Section 4). If you did, then the “Dublin procedure” will start in your case and the admissibility procedure will be suspended until the Dublin procedure is finished. See Section 4 for more details on the Dublin procedure.

Further on, your application will NOT be admitted to the detailed procedure, and will be refused if:

- you are a citizen of a member state of the European Union (EU);
- you have already been recognised as a refugee by another EU member state, or by another country and this status is still valid and you can go back to that country;
- you applied for asylum again after being rejected in a previous asylum procedure in Hungary, and your new application does not contain any new elements;
- you stayed or travelled through a “safe third country” (a non-EU country) before coming to Hungary and you had the possibility to ask for asylum there;
- you have relatives in a “safe third country” and you can lawfully enter that country;

- a “safe third country” requests your extradition (for example if you committed a crime there);
- your reasons for asking for asylum do not have any connection with asylum (for example your only problem is that you are not able to find a well-paid job at home);
- the Immigration Office cannot determine from which country you are from, because you are not telling the truth;
- you waited too long before asking for asylum, even though you had the possibility to do so.

The admissibility procedure takes 30 days maximum, but in practice it can take longer. If you apply for asylum at the airport, the Immigration Office has to finish the admissibility procedure within 8 days.

The admissibility procedure will be stopped and closed if you miss the interview or if you disappear! Bear in mind, if you disappear, the Immigration Office can also take a decision on the basis of the information available. This means that if you will be later on returned to Hungary under the Dublin procedure, you will have to submit a second asylum application which might not stop your deportation.

If the Immigration Office decides that your asylum application is “inadmissible” (not accepted), you have the right to appeal. You should submit your appeal to the Immigration Office within 3 days and the Office will forward it to the competent court. In your appeal, you have to explain why you do not agree with the decision. The Court may decide to interview you. The deadline for the Court to take a decision is 8 days. However, in practice this can take longer. You can ask the lawyer of the Hungarian Helsinki Committee to help you write your appeal, but you need to submit it yourself to the immigration office.

? Which countries does the Immigration Office consider to be a “safe third country”?

Any country where:

- your life and liberty are not in danger because of your race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership of a “particular social group” and you are not exposed to the risk of serious harm;
- they would not send you to another country where you would be exposed to death penalty, torture, cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment; and
- you can apply for refugee status and get protection.

If you don’t agree that a “safe third country” is actually safe for you, you have to prove this in the above-mentioned appeal.

? Where will I stay during the admissibility procedure?

Either in the open reception centre, a jail for asylum detention or an immigration jail (if you received an expulsion order). There is a map of the places at the beginning and they are listed at the end of this leaflet.

- If you are at the airport and the Immigration Office does not take a decision within 8 days, you will be transferred to an open reception centre or to a jail for asylum detention or to an immigration jail.

- If you are a minor (younger than 18 years) and you have no adult family member to take care of you in Hungary, you will be sent to the children's home in Fót. REMEMBER: If you don't have any document to prove that you are a minor and the authorities do not believe you, you should ask for a special examination by a doctor, who can officially say if you are younger or older than 18 years. Ask for help from a lawyer of the Hungarian Helsinki Committee.

? In which case will I be detained?

In Hungary there are two forms of detention: asylum detention and immigration detention for foreigners without a visa or a residence permit. If you are an unaccompanied minor under 18 years of age, you cannot be detained.

• Asylum detention

You can be detained in asylum detention if you apply for asylum for the first time and one of the following conditions apply:

- a) the authority has to verify your identity and nationality;
- b) you already disappeared from Hungary or you hinder the processing of the asylum procedure in any other way;
- c) if there are serious grounds to presume that you would delay or hinder the procedure or would disappear;
- d) in order to protect public order and national security;
- e) if you asked for asylum at the airport;
- f) you hindered the processing of the Dublin procedure by disappearing.

Asylum detention cannot last longer than 6 months.

Asylum detention should be applied as a measure of last resort and the Immigration Office should examine if alternative solutions can be applied:

- 1) paying bail (between the amount of 500 and 5000 EUR) to secure your presence, or
- 2) regular reporting obligations to the Immigration Office while you stay in private accommodation.

• Immigration detention

If you submit your second application for asylum, it will probably not stop the deportation procedure and you can be detained in immigration detention, while the authorities prepare your deportation. Immigration detention cannot last longer than 12 months. The local court will review detention every 60 days. You are entitled to have a lawyer with you and to ask for a personal hearing at the court where you can tell the judge that you do not agree with your detention.

B. THE “DETAILED PROCEDURE” (részletes eljárás)

During the detailed procedure, the Immigration Office will interview you at least once (but maybe more times). During these interviews you will be asked to explain in detail the reasons why you had to leave your country of origin. The first detailed interview usually takes place a few weeks after the start of the detailed procedure. You should ask the Hungarian Helsinki Committee's lawyer for help before your first interview.

Your “credibility” plays a very important role in this procedure, so it is very important that you give a detailed explanation during the interview(s) of why you had to leave your home country. Try to concentrate on the problems you had at home and the things that you are afraid of in your country.

If you cannot remember a name, place or date, don't panic and don't invent false details. Just try to think your story over again and give as much information as possible and explain to your officer why it is difficult to remember such details. It is not expected to submit any documentary evidence (certificates, judgments, articles, photos, etc.) to support your asylum application. However, if you have these with you, they can help to show that what you are saying is true. At the same time, presenting false documents can result in a criminal procedure. Use the time while you are waiting for the interview or the decision and search for relevant reports about the situation in your country on the internet to show your situation to the asylum officer. If you find any reports that might help you to prove your fear of going back to your country, you should submit it to the Immigration Office anytime during the procedure.

A written record will be prepared in Hungarian during the interview. This document must contain all the important elements of what you had said during the interview. At the end of the interview, this written record will be read and translated to you. When you sign the interview record, you also sign that you agree with what is written in it. This means that afterwards you will not be able to say that there was some misunderstanding or something was translated incorrectly. So listen very carefully when the records are read out to you at the end of the interview. You should say immediately if there are any problems with the translation.

In most cases, it is very hard to talk about the reasons for leaving your homeland. But if you do not tell your real problems during the interview, the authority will not be able to understand fully why you may need protection. If you feel tired during the interview, you can always ask for a short break. You may also ask for help from a doctor or psychologist from the Cordelia Foundation about how to talk to the officer about painful things that you would prefer not to remember (Cordelia's contact information is at the end of the leaflet).

Keep in mind: the officer, the interpreter, your lawyer, your social worker and the judge all have a strict obligation to keep everything what you said a secret. They will not tell anything about you to the authorities of your home country (not even the fact that you applied for asylum).

After the interview with your asylum officer, it is possible that the Hungarian national security services will interview you as well.

The deadline for the detailed procedure is 2 months, but in practice it can take longer.

? Where will I stay during the detailed procedure (including the appeal procedure)?

- If you were detained during the admissibility procedure, you can remain in the jail during the detailed procedure as well (for maximum 6 months);
- If you were not detained you will be able to stay in one of the open refugee camps. If you want to leave for more than 24 hours you have to get permission from the camp administration. If you leave the camp without permission for more than 24 hours, the Immigration Office will think that you have disappeared and will close your asylum procedure.
- You may also arrange your own private accommodation. You have to first request the Immigration Office to allow you to stay in a private apartment. To do this, you will have to submit the copy of the certificate that proves who the owner of the apartment is (tulajdoni lap), plus the rent agreement (lakásbérleti szerződés) or a declaration from the owner that proves that he/she gives you shelter for free (befogadó nyilatkozat).
- If you are a minor (younger than 18 years) and you are in Hungary without any adult family member, you will stay in the Children's home in Fót. See contact information at the end of the brochure.

Keep in mind: if you choose to stay at a private accommodation you must be reachable at the address you give to the Immigration Office. Make sure that your name is clearly written on both the door and the mailbox of the house. If you do not receive the letters that the Immigration Office sends you, they will think that you have disappeared and they will close your asylum procedure.

? How will I know when and where the interviews take place?

An official letter written in Hungarian will be given to you with all the details concerning the interview. If you stay in a refugee camp, the asylum officer will contact you to inform you about the date of the interview. If you stay at a private apartment, the postman will bring you a letter from the Immigration Office. If you are not at home, he/she will only leave a notice for you, and you will have to pick up the official letter at a nearby post office. If you have a lawyer, the Immigration Office will also inform the lawyer about the date of the interview. If you are detained, the officer will come to the detention centre and you will have an interview there.

Bear in mind: if you disappear the immigration authority can issue a decision in the detailed procedure on the basis of information available (without the second interview). This means that if you will be returned to Hungary later on under the Dublin procedure, you will have to submit a second asylum application (and present new facts and evidence) which might not stop your deportation.

3. Possible results of the asylum procedure

You have to be present in person when the decision is given to you. An interpreter will help you to understand the decision. If you leave the country before the decision is given to you, the decision will be published on the notice board of the Immigration Office and after 8 days they will consider it as if it had been personally given to you. This is important in case the decision is negative and you return to Hungary only after the deadline for appeal is over. In this case you will need to start a new asylum procedure and present new evidence.

A. If you are granted protection

You can get three kinds of protection under Hungarian law. When the asylum officer tells you about the decision, he/she will also explain the kind of protection status you are granted.

Refugee status (menekült)

A person who has a well-founded fear of being persecuted in his/her country of origin because of his/her race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership in a “particular social group”.

- “Persecution” usually means a serious human rights violation, such as torture, inhuman or degrading treatment, slavery, physical or sexual violence or very serious discrimination.
- A “well-founded fear” means that you can objectively show to the Immigration Office that you would be a victim of persecution if you had to return to your country of origin (for example: your statements at the asylum interview are coherent and credible).
- If you experience problems because you are a woman; because of your gender identity or sexual orientation (for example you are man and feel attraction to other men) or for having any other special characteristic that cannot be changed (or you do not want to hide it), you can fall under the “particular social group” category.

This status is valid for an indefinite period of time (but can be withdrawn in special circumstances). Under this status you get a Hungarian identity card for 10 years, a refugee travel document, you have the right to work and the right to family reunification. You can only reunite with your spouse, children, parents (if you are a child without family in Hungary), otherwise only with economically dependent parents or other close family members if they cannot care for themselves due to health reasons. If you start the family reunification within 6 months after you get the status, you will NOT have to prove that you can support your family or that they will have health insurance in Hungary. After 3 years of continuous stay in Hungary you can apply for Hungarian citizenship, but you will have to fulfil many different conditions to get it.

Subsidiary protection status (oltalmazott)

A person who is at a real risk of suffering any of the following harms in his/her country of origin:

- Death penalty;
- Torture, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment;
- Serious threat to a civilian's life or person because of indiscriminate violence in an armed conflict but NOT because of his/her race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership of a "particular social group" (for example there is war in your country and you had to escape because you were living in the war zone, even if you did not participate in the conflict).

This status is valid for 5 years, but it can be withdrawn earlier by the authorities. This status can be renewed after a review process. If you want to reunite with your family, you have to prove that you are able to support them (you have work and regular salary) and that they will have health insurance in Hungary. You can apply for Hungarian citizenship only after 8 years of staying here. Most other rights are similar to the rights of refugees.

Tolerated status (befogadott):

A protection status based on a more general (not individualised) risk of harm in the country of origin.

This status is valid for 1 year, but it also can be withdrawn earlier by the authorities. This status can also be renewed after a review process. Under this status you get a humanitarian residence permit, but you DO NOT get a travel document and you can only work if you obtain a work permit. If you want to reunite with your family, you have to prove that you are able to support them and that they will have health insurance in Hungary. After 3 years you can apply for permanent residence in Hungary.

REMEMBER: Bad economic or environmental conditions in your country of origin do not usually give you a right to any of these forms of protection.

B. If your asylum application is rejected or if you don't agree with the status granted

You have to submit your appeal to the Immigration Office within 8 days after receiving the decision. In your appeal, you need to explain why you think the decision is wrong. You can ask the Hungarian Helsinki Committee's lawyer to help you with the appeal. The deadline for the court to decide is 60 working days, but in practice the procedure can take several months. The court is obliged to interview you in person, but if you left the country or it is your second asylum application and you did not present any new evidence, the Court can also issue a decision without the interview.

At the end of the appeal procedure the court can take 3 different decisions:

- Accept your appeal and grant you one of the protection statuses (refugee status, subsidiary protection or tolerated status).
- Partly accept your appeal and cancel the decision of the Immigration Office, and order the Office to carry out a new procedure and re-consider your case.
- Reject your appeal and accept the decision as it is.

The court's decision will be final and you cannot appeal it.

C. Having more than one asylum application

Your asylum application will be considered as a second application in the following cases:

- if you withdrew your first application in writing
- if you received a negative decision either in the admissibility procedure or in the in-merit procedure and you did not appeal at court
- if you received a negative decision from the court.

You can start a new asylum procedure, but only if you can present important new facts or circumstances that were not considered in your previous asylum procedure (for example, the situation in your country of origin or your personal situation has changed since the previous asylum procedure).

REMEMBER: Your second asylum application may not prevent the authorities to expel you from Hungary before your asylum procedure is finished. In case you receive an expulsion order, you need to appeal against it within 8 days and ask the court to suspend your deportation at the same time. You should submit the appeal directly to the Immigration Office or the police and they will send it to the competent court. You can ask for help from a lawyer of the Hungarian Helsinki Committee.

D. Return to your home country

If you receive a final negative decision, the immigration officer will issue an expulsion order. You might appeal it within 8 days by sending your appeal to the Immigration Office. The court has 15 days to decide. If your expulsion order was issued before you asked for asylum, you can no longer appeal against it and you have to leave the country. With the expulsion order you may also receive a ban of entry to the Schengen area (the zone including most EU member states). Entry bans are for maximum 5 years.

If you would like to return to your home country voluntarily, you should mention this at the interview. You can also get in contact with the International Organization for Migration (see contact information at the end of the leaflet), and they will help you organise your voluntary return. The Immigration Office can also decide that you will be returned forcibly. In that case you will be detained while they prepare your deportation. The expulsion order can be suspended if more time is needed for the preparation of your deportation than the maximum period of detention, which is 12 months.

If, for objective reasons, your return is impossible, the Immigration Office will give you a temporary residence certificate (ideiglenes tartózkodásra jogosító igazolás), which is valid for up to 3 months. This certificate protects you from arrests and detention if you are stopped by the police and you did not commit any offence or crime. With this temporary residence certificate you are entitled to emergency health care. This residence document does not grant you the right to work, to participate in public education or to receive financial assistance.

? Where will I stay during the return procedure?

You will stay in an immigration jail or in the community shelter in Balassagyarmat (see contact information at the end of the leaflet). However, you cannot stay more than 2 months in the community shelter.

4. The “Dublin procedure” in Hungary

You cannot choose the country in which you wish to apply for asylum.

According to the “Dublin Regulation” of the EU, you can only apply for refugee status in one EU member state. Usually, this is the first member state that you reach. This normally means that any other state where you apply later will return you to the first state.

This can happen when:

- your fingerprints were taken in another country (your fingerprints are stored in a common European database called EURODAC, so the authorities will recognise you even if you use a different name or personal identity)
- you tell the authorities that you have been to or travelled through another EU country, even if you didn't give your fingerprints
- some other evidence shows that you have been to another EU country
- you have a visa for an EU country
- you tell the authorities that you want to join your spouse, who is an asylum seeker or a refugee in another country.

The Dublin regulation applies in the following countries: Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom. Iceland, Norway and Switzerland are not EU member states but still participate in the Dublin system.

? What happens if Hungary wants to send me to another state under the Dublin Regulation?

In the admissibility procedure (see Section 2A) the Immigration Office will first examine whether a Dublin procedure should start in your case. If yes, the admissibility procedure is suspended until the decision of which country is responsible for dealing with your asylum claim. The Dublin procedure can take a long time, several weeks or even months. Once the Immigration Office issues a Dublin decision, you can no longer withdraw your asylum application. If the Immigration Office decides that another country should deal with your asylum application, and you do not agree with this, you can appeal this decision. You should submit your appeal to the Immigration Office within 3 days. Your appeal will be decided by a regional court, depending on the place of your accommodation or detention. The appeal will not automatically stop your transfer. Therefore, in your appeal you should also ask the court to suspend your transfer. The official deadline for the court to decide is 8 days, but this can take longer in practice. The court will not interview you personally and there is very little chance that your appeal will be successful. You can ask for help from the Hungarian Helsinki Committee.

? Can I be transferred to another state if I am sick?

You should tell the asylum officer about any disability, illness, health or psychological problems that you have at the first interview. If the Immigration Office still decides to send you to another state, you can repeat these reasons in the appeal against the Office's decision.

? My family member lives in another EU country. Can this country become responsible for my asylum application?

Only if your family member is your child under 18 years of age, husband, wife or your parent (if you are under 18). In case of other family members, you will have to prove that they depend on you due to their health conditions. Mention this at the first interview right after your arrival.

? I have experienced serious problems in the EU country that I crossed before I came to Hungary. What can I do to avoid my transfer back to this country?

You should mention this at the first interview with the Immigration Office. If the Office still decides to send you to this state, you can still repeat these reasons in the appeal against the Office's decision. Don't forget to ask the court to suspend your transfer.

? I have already asked for asylum in another EU country and my asylum application was rejected. Why does the Hungarian authority still want to send me back to this EU country?

The Dublin procedure will start even if your application was rejected, unless the country where you received a negative decision has already started the deportation procedure.

If you are returned to Hungary under the Dublin procedure and you would like to ask for asylum or to maintain your former asylum claim, you have to make this clear at the first interview with the Immigration Office.

A. If you had previously applied for asylum in Hungary before and your procedure was finished

? When is my procedure finished?

- If you receive a final negative decision (your application and appeals were rejected),
- If the first decision was negative and you missed the deadline for appeal or you did not go to the court hearing,
- If you withdrew your asylum application in writing.

If you come back to Hungary and your previous asylum procedure has already finished, you will have to start a new asylum procedure. To have your new asylum application accepted, you have to present important new facts or circumstances that were not considered in your previous asylum procedure (for example, the situation in your country of origin or your personal situation has changed since the previous asylum procedure). REMEMBER: Your second asylum application will not automatically prevent the authorities from deporting you from Hungary. If this is the case (if you received an expulsion order) you should appeal against the expulsion order within 8 days and also ask the court to suspend your deportation.

B. If you have not applied for asylum in Hungary before

You can apply for asylum when you are transferred to Hungary. In case you receive an expulsion order, the expulsion will be suspended for the duration of the asylum procedure, but you should still appeal against the expulsion order.
